THROUGH THE YEARS OF INNOVATION AND EXCELLENCE

EVSU lauds 112th Founding Anniv

By DAN JAKE BASALO

EVSU celebrated its twelfth year into its second century with a series of activities geared to commemorate its years of innovating and excelling not only in the academic arena, but also in molding competitive human resource for sustainable development.

Anchored on the theme “EVSU: Through the Years of Innovation and Excellence”, students, non-teaching personnel, faculty members, and administrators brewed several presentations and INNOVATION continued on Page 6

TECHNOVATION. One of the highlights of the 112th Founding Anniversary Celebration of Eastern Visayas State University (EVSU) is the launching of the Innovation Month with a ribbon cutting and an exhibit featuring the different innovative outputs by the students from different colleges, in front of the Administration Building.

In line with the theme of the 112th Founding Anniversary, EVSU launched its first Innovation Month as part of the opening ceremonies last February 12, with an exhibit showing the different innovations from each college department.

“This is a first for the university to hold the innovation month so that we can showcase the technological advancements of the school”, said Dr. Dennis C. de Paz during the Three fully-furnished classrooms from the Social Sciences Department of the College of Arts and Sciences (CAS) are now ready for use in holding General Education classes after its benediction ceremony yesterday led by University Chaplain Rev. Fr. Wilson Chu at the CAS building.

"Additional classrooms para hit faculty of Social Sciences and Economics Department, tungod man gud na kulang kami hin classrooms and yet we are serving all the colleges who are offering Gen Ed subjects," explained Prof. Sarah G. Cajipo, Head of the Social Sciences Department.

The fund of the said project was collected from the personal monetary asset of the faculty and slashed from the fund of the department due to the lack of classrooms caused by a greater student population.

"That was through the effort of faculty members nga an iba voluntarily naghatag hin money an iba naman is with the funds of the department. An iba hito na mga materials hin tikang han gin-guba na SASO building pero like an mga semento waray man kami

Eastern Visayas State University kicked-off its 112th Founding Anniversary with the first ever EVSUnistas 2019 last February 10, aimed to generate funds to shoulder the expenses for the said festivity.

Spearheaded by Dr. Felix Dexter O. Barrion, Director for IGP and in connection with the Physical Education (PE) Department, said fun run was one of the university's biggest fun run events with over 3,572 runners participating in both 3k and 5k categories with cash prizes being held

EVSU moved forward in resilience and unity – Prez Aguirre

By CHRISTIANNE FAITH
A. MAHINAY

University President, Dr. Dominador O. Aguirre, Jr. believed that optimism in the face of challenges and unity in diversity were the key factors why EVSU reached 112 years of innovation and excellence in his speech during the opening ceremonies of the week-long festivities at the soccer field yesterday.

“As part of the region, we have never lost hope and become optimistic because we strongly believe that the power of our strength comes from becoming a one big family,” Dr. Aguirre said.

The university president opened the week-long celebration by becoming grateful to a lot of good things happened in the university over the years recognizing the share of each EVSUnista in charting the future of the institution in resilience and unity.

“There are still a considerable number of concerns which we need to address but with our strong determination to succeed, we will overcome the odds,” he emphasized.

According to him, despite constantly building and continuing what the predecessors have done to make the academe a wholesome place to educate the mind, the heart and the character of the people, EVSUnistas must continually do this in a step by step process in order to build a lasting legacy for the university.

Moreover, Dr. Aguirre was proud to acknowledge as to what the institution has become having more accredited programs, obtained remarkable results in the board examinations, having more researches, increasing number of outreach programs, good name earned from successful alumni members and having more responsive and dynamic constituents.

“We have assembled to celebrate another milestone in our history as a university. We are more than ready to face the future!” he concluded.

Float Parade flaunts EVSU System's main trades

By ERWIN M. ELICOT, JR.

Five Campuses of Eastern Visayas State University converge in a parade that features the different trades of the community of each campus.

Said parade added color to the 112th Founding Anniversary of EVSU whereas the main campus, Carigara Campus, Tanauan Campus, Burauen Campus and Ormoc Campus routed through out the Downtown area of Tacloban City.

"The float parade aimed to represent the unique characteristics of each campus so that they could have their own identity distinctly from the other campuses," Dr. Reginaldo T. Gozo, Director for Culture and the Arts said

Main Campus' float featured the innovations of its community through a gallery photo exhibit inspired design whereas, Ormoc Campus formed a giant eagle float to represent the branding of the university.

At the end of the opening program, the best float award went to the Tanauan Campus followed by Burauen Campus at the second place and Ormoc Campus at the third place.

"Actually, we didn't expect to win at the best float, but we are thankful it happened. It's all through the persons involve. Through them we made it happen," said a faculty member from the Burauen Campus. •

"The sole purpose of the fun run is for the foundation day alone," said Dr. Barrion, as he gave a brief statement on how the fundings should be spent and making sure that all funds collected from the fun run go to the itemized expenses for the prices of the foundation week.

Dr. Barrion further explained that most of the funds collected will likewise shoulder the expenses of the contests proposed by the university administrators as well by the SSG officers such as the Float Competition, Playground Demonstration, and the Fellowship Night which carried majority of the funds.

The festivities will continue as it will have its opening ceremony on February 12 starting off with a motorcade and a playground demonstration. •

The opening ceremonies kicked-off with a holy mass presided by the University Chaplain, Rev. Fr. Wilson Chu who anchored his homily on showing love to the institution by doing small things that will enhance the image of the school and elevate its spirit as a university.

As part of the launching of the Innovation Month, Fr. Chu and the university administrators inaugurated the TechnoMart Building and blessed the CAS SocSci Rooms and the Student Publications Office.

Festive motifs also decorated the Float Parade and the Field Demonstrations adding to the excitement of the opening ceremonies. Ormoc City Campus bagged the Best Field Demonstration while Tanauan Campus won the Best Float award.

Prior to the execution of the playground demonstrations, University President, Dr. Dominador O. Aguirre, Jr., formally opened the celebration in a speech graced by Hon. Frances Ann Petilla and Hon. Victor Villasin followed by the singing of the newest song "Hooray EVSU" by the Koro Waraynon.

Furthermore, Director of Culture and the Arts, Dr. Reginaldo T. Gozo read the criteria for judging the six competing teams of the field contest namely, Group 1-CAS, COT and COED, Group 2-COBE, COE, CAAD and GS, Group 3-Tanauan Campus, Group 4-Burauen Campus, Group 5-Carigara Campus, Group 6-Ormoc City Campus and Group 7-Non-Teaching Personnel.

University President, Dr. Dominador O. Aguirre, Jr. said in his speech, "We are constantly building and continuing what our predecessors have done to make our academic community a wholesome place to educate the mind, the heart, and the character of our people."

The whole week will be dedicated to various activities that will embody this year's theme. •

The College of Engineering(COE)showcased their advancements from the Information Technology department, through their IAssess: Municipal Assesor's Integrated app, a "real property assessment", and the Mother Tongue Dictionary app, which is a mobile dictionary app focusing on the translations of the Tagalog dictionary to the different dialects of Region 8.

Electrical Engineering (EE) presented a form of 2-way energy sources with the "Stand-Alone Hybrid: Solar and Wind Park System" which uses solar and wind energy to charge a battery to luminate a lamp that automatically turns on when detected by a "Light Dependent Resistor", and the "Voltage Generating Fitness Bike", which uses both solar and mechanical energy to power a generator.

In addition, they presented the Solar Powered Community Based Early Warning System for Natural disasters that detects water, temperature, air, and earthquake levels and which also gives warning signs through instant messages.

The College of Technology (COT), in collaboration with the Eastern Visayas Food Innovation Center (EVFIC), showcased the products they produced in the center, like the Crunchy Mayahini, Powdered Lato, Camias, and Basil, variations of Vaccum Fried vegetables and fish.

The College of Architecture and Allied Discipline's Interior Design Department presented off one of its projects worked by The Designnovator Team, the "Bakwit-Kit" that imitates a home in an evacuation center. The project was designed by Heidrun Milan, Jeff Villegas, and Joppa de Guzman, using Human-Centered Design.

The College of Arts and Sciences showcased their presentation in Biomimicry, Biology, Chemistry, Physics and Statistics. As well as showing displays about leaf skeletons, skeletal system of a toad, and leaf preservation.

COBE's exhibit on "COBE Innovate," as described by Dr. Gerry B. de Cadiz, Dean of the College of Business and Entrepreneurship, that focuses on the release of the COBE official website cobe.evsu.edu.ph. This will be released in time with the launching of the new Entrepreneurship Building, the leveling of the student's business curriculum with online application through e-commerce sites and Standardized Implementation of CHED on business curriculums.

In addition, COBE featured the provisions of the new business building with specialized laboratories for different programs, offices and research centers. Aimed to integrate all canteens of the university in one accessible building, the Office of Income Generating Project inaugurated the TechnoMart yesterday as part of the opening highlights of the 112th Founding Anniversary.

The said entrepreneurial hub located at the back of the Technology Building was built with 24 stalls and 10 food carts which all met the qualification standards set by the university.

"We aim to standardize our canteens in order to monitor all the products and at the same time organize school buildings since the school is still developing," said Dr. Felix Dexter Barrion, head of Income Generating Project (IGP).

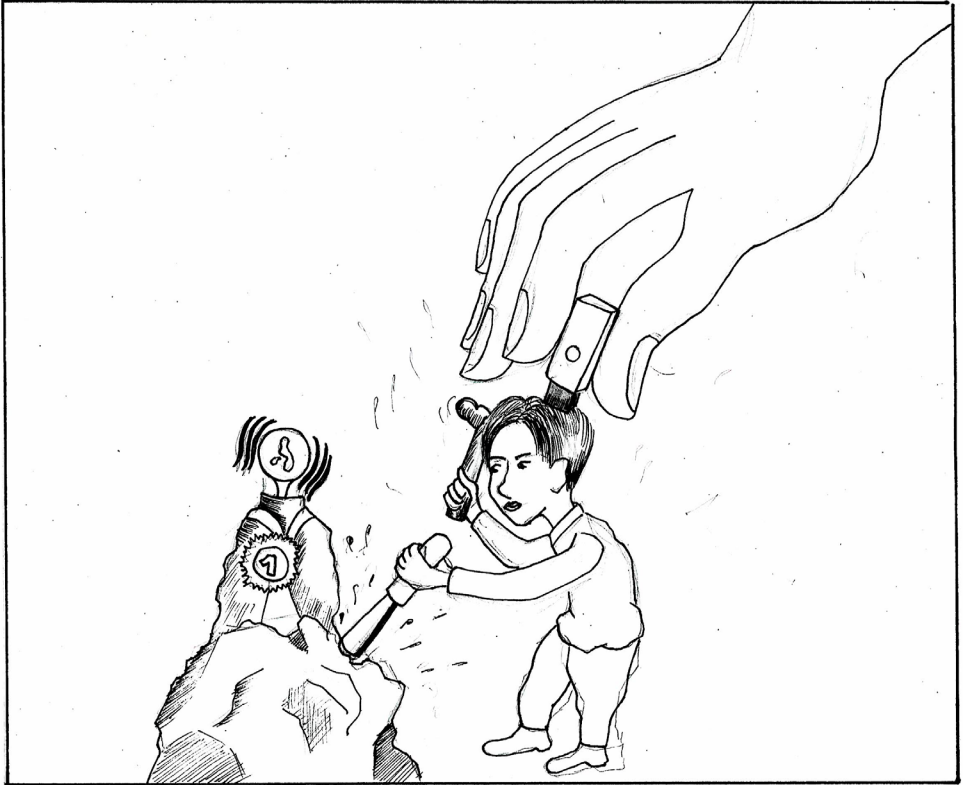

The constructions costs more than Php 7,000,000.00 as part of the IGP of the university opened to all store owners who are interested in putting up a stall.

Dr. Barrion added that they are planning to issue a three-year contract for the stall operators.

"It is also open for students who have business implementations particularly those students who are from the College of Business and Entrepreneurship," Dr. Barrion further mentioned.

Meanwhile, equipment like tables, chairs, utensils and likewise a dishwasher, utility and a security officer are provided by the university when owning a food cart. •

12 years into the 2nd century

When the University President said during his opening speech yesterday that he strongly believes that it only takes a strong determination and a unified belief that we are capable of overcoming the struggles the institution faces, there was an evident ripple of hope that transcended to everybody who was listening. Likewise, his statement made this year's theme more relevant and believable.

It cannot be denied that the university hasn't had the smoothest ride when it comes to delivering the demands of its immediate clientele. But, it cannot also be denied that it has EDITORIAL continued on Page 10 continuously tried to make do with whatever is available to make sure that its stakeholders are satisfied at the very least. For 112 years, it has innovated and transformed itself to cater to the changes of time. From shifting its curricula and academic calendar to establishing new buildings that are aimed to house state-of-the-art facilities, EVSU has truly been aiming to be one of the prime institutes in the region and the Philippines.

We still got a long way to go before we get to truly be the institution we aim to be. We have to mobilize each sector of the university and align our perspectives in a way that is unified and meant to better our institution. We have to empower both the students and the faculty, strengthen our research sector, develop a more efficient entrepreneurial stance, and heighten the curricular offerings to make sure that we are moving towards a brighter second century and creating a lasting legacy for EVSU.

Waving excellence with humility

“Living is seeing and inspiring numerous people change lives and create innovations.”

As the university turns 112 today, we have seen waving lights signifying the unity, camaraderie and warmth of hearts on every EVSUnista as they raise their respective phones and wave it with pride along with the key officials at the EVSU soccer field.

Despite the countless challenges the university went through, from the decrease of enrollees for the past two years, the massive effect of typhoon Yolanda, undergraduate programs which failed to meet their target passing rates and many more, EVSU ceased to win every game and leave the field with smiles on their faces.

Numerous construction projects are currently at hand. The Techno Mart and Social Science Wooden Classrooms were inaugurated as part of this year's founding anniversary celebration. The Civil Engineering Department made a swift increase on their passing rate that reached 70.9 percent this school year. Also, the other departments have made new set of licensed professionals. One of our alumni is currently an academician of De La Salle University. The Main Campus has also developed stronger ties with the external campuses bringing us altogether into an efficient and performing university full of humble potentials. These are just few of the university's triumph which is to seize on the following years.

From being Leyte Institute of Technology to becoming Eastern Visayas State University, we have honed countless conceivable leaders who made changes for the nation. Little did we know it, the university have also refined successful professionals who are not just excelling in their careers but have become big-hearted parents, friends and mentors primary factor in developing a great mind in the next generation.

Eastern Visayas State University may not be on the top university list but rest assured that we have made undeniable benchmarking and breakthroughs.

Upon attending the opening program, I have heard in the shouts and have seen laughter of the students, faculty and administration a blissful heart of being part of the EVSU family. Along with this, let us happily continue being part of this family waving our flag with pride.

Like eagles, the university continues to soar and conquer the highlands. Like eagles, we embody courage and bravery. Like eagles, we uphold honor and dignity. Like eagles, we fly from low and the soar high. Like eagles, we stand with determination in grace. Like eagles, we shine with pride with our humblest hearts.

Voices are made not to be silenced

“You have the power to empower others to be the change – use that power.”

As the years pass by, the youth gets tougher and tougher. This generation has definitely shaken up a lot of beliefs and were never cowards in voicing out their opinions to the general public. They never shied from pointing out the incompetence and unjust acts of the national government – they push through even though the majority forces to silence them.

The truth, our rights, and justice – the main reasons why most students choose to protest. Because why would you keep mum when you know that we are being lied to, that our rights are being stripped from us, and that justice is never served to the less fortunate? We are all well-aware of how our government – the people we trusted to lead our nation – tend to turn us into their puppets. But this time, they have competition that they want to bring down to keep their shenanigans lowkey.

If you look deep into the situation, the individuals who indulge themselves into such practices do not aim to be rebels but rather game changers; the stronger force that wants to do nothing but defend us from the ill ruling of our higher officials. They speak for the oppressed and serve as voices for the voiceless. Yes, they may go overboard at times by vandalizing, causing traffic, and ruining public property, and we must not tolerate such behavior because those are instances when they cross the line. But in the end, they will do everything in their power to be heard and for the government to know that we, as a nation, are not easily shaken.

Furthermore, in this digital age, protests do not only take place in crowded streets but in the comfort of the many platforms that social media can offer as well. You yourself can be a part of a powerful campaign just by typing on your laptops or whatever gadgets you are holding right now. You don't have to take to the streets or participate in traditional means of protest to fight against injustice, for justice and to demonstrate your views. You don't have to be part of a revolutionary, anarchist or any other group to have an opinion on these issues, and you shouldn't have to subscribe to an ideology to participate in a campaign.

Remember that we have voices for a reason and that it is not made to be silenced but to be used for the greater good. You have the power to change our nation and prevent it from turning into dust, you have the power to empower others to be the change – use that power.

What are your thoughts so far about the first day of the Foundation Week?

Compiled By CARLO D. REALINO

Enjoyment is a term in which we express our feelings or in a simple way, happiness. The first of the foundation week was a blast. Things are just getting started. CL Escape

The first day of foundation day was really fun. Na surprise ak han mga api han playground demo. Babygirl

The first day of foundation week was enjoyable. It was indeed enjoyable because teachers, students, and even non-teaching personnel were united as one. All were united and it was so refreshing to witness that all of us are participating on this special event. Shishuka

Para ha akon marisyo kay diri la kami na mga taga main campus an nag enjoy, labi na an mga taga external campuses. Aside la han mga sayaw nira na mag-upay, ada giyap an different booths nga puyde makadtuanan han mga students. PrettySZE

The activities I've witnessed so far in the first day of the foundation week was unexpected. The different campuses of EVSU really did a great preparation. And to think that it's just the beginning of the fun. I can't wait to see and join in the different activities for the whole week. I'm sure it will be one of my memorable experiences as a student of EVSU. Ashira

It looks like a 'FIESTA SA NAYON', everything was fun to watch especially the playground demo as the highlight of today's event. Don'tTouchMe

OP-ED Vox Scholaris

So far the activities were amazing in a way that it made everyone who attended feel the excitement and joy as the university intended what better way to start the celebration. As a spectator, I would say that ESVU is not holding back on giving a memorable moment to celebrate the occasion. Cute

The first day of the foundation week was great. I am entertained with all of their performance from the start of this day's event until the end of the program, it was great. Brilyn14

Tiring but the energy and experience is high. It leaves a person excited for the activities next day. I hope to see more surprises on the upcoming days. Colove Girl

It was fun though the event for this day had started late, but what matter is that it was successfully done. A kind of good start for this celebration of founding anniversary. Urbebeh

Well, actually knowing EVSU there are really lots of activities and events that are expected to happen and so far I was amused by the thought that they never failed me since today's event has been successful probably, not only for me but for all of as. Rainbow

My thought about the first day of the 112th founding anniversary. I was not expecting that it would not be as great as I expected and it really was wonderful. Lynx

The first day of the foundation week was indeed a bomb- full of explosions. I really love the idea of celebrating the foundation week with satellite campuses. That makes the EVSU unified amidst diversity. Khem

Through Impossibilities

By ALIEZA JEAN T. BULACOF

Success is not all about the storms you survived and struggles you surpassed, but rather about staying strong and never being afraid to face new challenges in the future.

Eastern Visayas State University (EVSU) is an academe of talent, skills and charisma which became an instant asset of the EVSUnistas. With these, the community grew to become one and united. Since time immemorial, EVSU continues to soar high, reaching dreams in the midst of impossibilities.

The spirit of the 112th Founding Anniversary anchored on the theme “Through the Years of Innovation and Excellence” was wrapped-up in a song entitled “Hooray EVSU” written by Nhely Jane R. Busano, arranged by Richard Ion Ron Abenoja and designed and conceptualized by Prof. Jerry E. Mores. The song featured the university’s journey all throughout the years, how it managed to stand and survived against all odds.

“We are diverse in terms of skills, talents, and attributes and it has been a challenge to all of us but then it does not limit us all to achieve things we want to achieve, and that is what we want to say about this song. We wanted to touch each and every heart of EVSUnistas, to tell them that we have made it. To make them realize that as long as we are united we can make things possible,” said Nhely.

EVSU has faced so many challenges that tested the EVSUnista’s abilities honing them into the best versions of themselves that they can be.

“Looking back from all those challenges, we have succeeded, it is right at least to celebrate for it. Those challenges never loosen our hopes, our faith, because as long as we believe on one another abilities, together we can make it,” she added.

EVSU definitely does not settle for less and continuously strives hard to generate new ideas to achieve innovation.

“As you can see, we keep upgrading and upgrading for good and that is what I see about EVSU, full of spirit,” she continued.

The song reminds EVSUnistas that defeat is nothing but a simple word against those and that together they can rise among the ashes.

The EVSU community never fails in proving that differences should not serve as hindrances but as an avenue to find everyone’s common ground, for each ability is important and there is no impossible thing to reach dreams as long as we have one another we can make it.

Hooray EVSU was first sung during the opening program of the university’s Foundation Week. •
